In some way a large number of young men come out of the schools inclined to discredit the authority of much that is in the Bible. They speak lightly, if not sneeringly, of what experienced Christians hold sacred. There is wrong somewhere. If teachers do not inculcate doubts, they do not succeed in removing them. The business of theological schools is to equip pupils to meet opposers of the faith, to send them forth sound and strong to battle for the Lord, armed with adequate knowledge of the position and methods of the enemy, and certainly disposed and ready...
