A ballot was ordered immediately, the candidate elected, and the same evening received the 3d degree. Is this a proper way to proceed in such cases? Has this man become a master mason and member of the Lodge legally? In all cases where a candidate for the 2d or 3d degree has been rejected, a new application, if made at all, should be made in writing, the petition referred to a committee of enquiry, to report at the next stated meeting. When that report is made a ballot can be taken. Any other practice may work injustice, and will most likely introduce discord and contention in the Lodge, which ought to be guarded against by every Master of a Lodge. No man should ever be allowed to come into the Lodge unless he can come with the consent...
